

Q&A: Requirements and How to Apply to the Critical Legal Training

Who can participate in the Critical Legal Training (CLT)?

Students: The Critical Legal Training is open to students who will be enrolled at university for the entire period of their participation in the Critical Legal Training (max. three months, or longer if it is a mandatory internship). For expected qualifications, please see below.

Referendar*innen (German trainee lawyers): We welcome applications by *Referendar*innen* for the CLT. You can complete your Wahlstation or a part of your Anwaltsstation (usually three months) at ECCHR as a legal advice organization. It is unfortunately not possible to complete the full nine months of the Anwaltsstation at ECCHR. In some German state jurisdictions other parts such as Verwaltung may be possible. Applicants would have to inquire about that with the responsible court in their jurisdiction.

Young professionals: In specific circumstances, the CLT is also open to young professionals who have recently completed their education. Please note that this is only possible if you are able to obtain funding via a recognized scholarship/fellowship program. Please see below (funding and scholarships) for more details.

What are the expected qualifications and experiences?

Education: Applicants should be at an advanced stage of their education (you should be above Bachelor's level, ideally graduate studies or professional legal training (i.e. Referendariat)) and should have excellent qualifications in law and/or another relevant subject.

Please note: An academic background in law is a plus but not a must. We welcome applications from other fields (e.g. international relations, social and political sciences) showing a strong understanding of human rights. There is also the option to apply for a communications & media internship (native-level German required). Open calls for this internship are published on the ECCHR website and the application process is not managed via the Critical Legal Training team.

Expertise: All applicants should have a fundamental understanding of human rights and ideally should have previous experience in an NGO or activist environment. They should also have program-specific background knowledge:

Business and Human Rights: Sound knowledge of the international debate on business and human rights and lawsuits taken against corporations on a national level.

Institute for Legal Intervention: Knowledge of Postcolonial Legal Critique and interest in elaborating on legal interventions against (post-)colonial injustice.

International Crimes and Accountability: Excellent understanding of international criminal law (incl. extraterritorial cases before national courts) as well as the current legal and political debates on international criminal jurisdiction. Background knowledge of sexualized violence in international criminal law is a plus.

Border Justice: Good knowledge of European and public international law as well as the relevant fundamentals of refugee law, ideally also practical experience in migration law or refugee protection.

Languages: Fluency in English is required; a good knowledge of German is desirable but not obligatory for participation in the Critical Legal Training; competency in other languages (e.g. Spanish, Arabic, Russian and French – depending on current projects) is a bonus.

Does the program have a fixed length and fixed start and end dates?

No, legal traineeships start on a rolling basis throughout the year, usually on the first day of the month, and depending on availabilities. The length is flexible, too, though three months is the norm.

The minimum length is ten weeks for a student summer internship. However, we strongly recommend a minimum stay of three months in order to fully benefit from the program.

Beyond that, we do our best to accommodate time requirements for university credit, Referendariat, and scholarship-funded stays that can be longer.

Applicants should state their preferred as well as the earliest and latest possible start date in the application form. Please always check our website to know about the vacancies of the program team you are applying for. The earliest possible starting dates for each team are updated regularly.

Is part-time participation in the program possible?

Yes, though full-time is recommended, part-time participation is generally possible and can be negotiated with the supervisor. The minimum work time is three days/week.

Note to *Referendar*innen* (German trainee lawyers): Participation in the CLT will be organized to accommodate obligations arising from the Referendariat.

Is remote participation possible?

No, the Critical Legal Training requires being present in Berlin and coming to office regularly. Working and learning alongside our colleagues, engaging in discussion rounds and participating in the curriculum lives from in-person interaction. Work at ECCHR in general is organized in that way.

However, working from home on some days is possible and can be discussed with your supervisors.

How to apply?

Applications may be submitted in German or in English; the choice of language will not place applicants at an advantage or disadvantage.

Note: For the Border Justice Program, please send your complete application in English.

Please use the online form to submit your application. An overview of the complete application form is copied below.

If for technical reasons you are not able to use the online application form, please inform us about these difficulties and send your complete application incl. CV in one PDF document to: application@ecchr.eu

Please limit your application to the requested documents and do not include transcripts, letters of recommendation or work samples.

What are deadlines and process of application?

Applications are accepted on a rolling basis. We review full applications three times a year. The deadlines are published on our website.

You can expect a response from us around six to eight weeks after the deadline you applied within.

Short-listed candidates will be contacted for an interview with one of the program lawyers. Unsuccessful candidates will be notified by e-mail.

If you need to hear back from us earlier, e. g. because of the deadline of a fellowship program you are applying for, please send an e-mail to application@ecchr.eu after having submitted your online application. According to the involved colleagues' capacities, we will try to get back to you earlier. Please respect that this is an exception and we can only do this for very few people.

How long in advance to apply?

As an earliest possible start date, applicants should calculate a minimum of two months after the deadline they apply within.

Ideally, the preferred start date should lie between six months and one year from the deadline applied for. If necessary (e.g. for external scholarship applications), applications can also be reviewed more than one year in advance.

Earliest possible start dates are advertised on our website and updated regularly.

What funding or scholarships are available?

Participation in the Critical Legal Training is not paid.

We strongly encourage applications with external funding/scholarships. ECCHR is happy to provide all necessary documentation to support scholarship applications.

The following are scholarship programs for students and young professionals we have worked with:

Erasmus+, Erasmus for Young Entrepreneurs, German Chancellor Fellowship, ifa Cross Culture Programme, Mercator Fellowship, Mercator Kolleg, EZ-Traineeprogramm of GIZ

Some CLT participants come with the support of their university's own fellowship program.

The following platforms provide information on scholarship opportunities:

Academia

Arbeiterkind

Deutscher Akademischer Austauschdienst \(DAAD\)

Possibility of obtaining funding for research projects:

ECCHR is recognised as a research institution which is helpful for hosting researchers. If you are doing the traineeship with a strong focus on research, maybe even while you are doing a PhD, this might open up more possibilities for you to apply for fellowship programs, e. g. via DAAD (use their scholarship finder linked above). You may apply to the CLT in connection with a research fellowship, but this is to be discussed with your future supervisor after your successful application.

Funding via Erasmus+:

Erasmus+ is one of the easiest options to get funding for a traineeship. You have to be enrolled at a European University (not in Germany) to apply for the stipend. Erasmus+ is also available for recent graduates, but you have to apply while you are still enrolled. Please check with the international office of your university.

Universities also frequently circulate or even offer fellowship opportunities (both for internships and research stays). Check with the career service of your University.

Please note that in most cases, obtaining a scholarship is contingent on your successful application to our program, so if you have to plan several months in advance for the whole process.

In case you need to hear back from us earlier than 6 weeks after the next application deadline (as advertised on our website), please send an additional e-mail to application@ecchr.eu to inform us about your timeline! We will try to look at your application earlier, if our capacities allow us (please understand that this is not always possible, but we are doing our best).

Scholarships specifically linked to the Critical Legal Training:

ECCHR has been able to issue calls for scholarships for the Critical Legal Training in the past. Open scholarship calls will be published on our website.

CLT Training Fund:

If a candidate who is a student and has been accepted to the CLT is not able to obtain any external funding or scholarship, an internal training fund is available. In such circumstances, ECCHR can provide a small monthly allowance.
